7-1. 25-9월

Q-21. 밑줄 친 swimming alongside the boat가 다음 글에서 의미하는 바로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

배를 따라 수영하다

Mirror neurons are the hardware of empathy, and so what would make more sense than to look and see which animals possess these cells? And this is exactly where modern research now stands: all researchers know so far is that apes possess mirror neurons. We still need to test to see which other species are like us in this respect. Scientists often publicly speculate that we can probably expect surprises here, too. They assume that all animals that live in herds or large groups possess similar brain mechanisms, because social units function only if individuals can see things from the perspective of others in the group and feel what they are feeling. I can see a goldfish waving its fin at us. As an animal that travels around in a tightly-knit group, it's on board with this idea - or at least swimming alongside the boat.

on board (한 배를 타다) vs alongside the boat (배를 따라서)

mirror neuron 거울 뉴런
empathy 공감(능력)

possess 지니다
in this respect 이런 점에서

speculate 추측하다

herd 무리, 떼
mechanism 작동 원리

from the perspective of ~의 관점에서

tightly-knit 결속력이 강한
be on board with ~에 동의하다
alongside ~의 옆에서

7-1. 25-9월

Q-21. 밑줄 친 swimming alongside the boat가 다음 글에서 의미하는 바로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

① reluctant to empathize with other members in its group

② potentially able to be proven to possess mirror neurons

③ learning effective swimming skills with the help of others

④ constantly trying to hide from animals that have mirror neurons

⑤ cautious about potential conflict over resources with other species

be reluctant to ~하기를 꺼리다
empathize with ~에 공감하다

with the help of others 다른 사람들의 도움 덕분에
be cautious about ~을 경계하다
conflict over ~을 둘러싼 갈등

① 비교급 의문문 · 간접의문문

so what would make more sense / than to look and see / which animals possess these cells?

- 수사의문문: ~하는 것보다 무엇이 더 합리적이겠는가? → 직접 확인하는 것이 가장 합리적이라는 강조
- 간접의문문: which animals possess …는 see의 목적어

② only if · 병렬구조

because social units function / only if individuals can see things / from the perspective of others in the group / and feel what they are feeling.

- only if: 오직 ~할 때만
- 병렬구조: individuals can [see …] and [feel …]
- 관계대명사 what: what they are feeling = 그들이 느끼는 것

7-1. 25-9월

Q-21. 밑줄 친 swimming alongside the boat가 다음 글에서 의미하는 바로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

Mirror neurons are the hardware of empathy, and so what would make more sense than to look and see which animals possess these cells? And this is exactly where modern research now stands: all researchers know so far is that apes possess mirror neurons. We still need to test to see which other species are like us in this respect. Scientists often publicly speculate that we can probably expect surprises here, too. They assume that all animals that live in herds or large groups possess similar brain mechanisms, because social units function only if individuals can see things from the perspective of others in the group and feel what they are feeling. I can see a goldfish waving its fin at us. As an animal that travels around in a tightly-knit group, it's on board with this idea - or at least swimming alongside the boat.

7-1. 25-9월

Q-32. 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

A great strength of the market mechanism is that there are incentives for individuals _____. This stands in contrast to many strategic situations — for example, in political negotiations — in which it is wise not to let the other side know what one's true preferences or production capacities are. A perfectly competitive market that clears on the spot leaves no room for such strategies. If prices are not sticky — as many models assume — individuals adapt their behavior instantaneously, whenever their preferences or the circumstances change. They stop buying items that do not satisfy their needs and stop selling items that do not provide them with optimal gains, maybe switching to the production of other items. If they have motivational problems, for example, falling into denial about the fact that there is no demand for their products, markets reveal to them, sometimes in quite brutal ways, that they better accept this fact.

incentive 유인, 동기

stand in contrast to ~와 대조되다

production capacity 생산 능력

clear (시장) 수급 균형을 이루다

leave no room for ~의 여지를 주지 않다

sticky (가격이) 잘 변하지 않는

instantaneously 즉각적으로

optimal gains 최적의 이익

fall into denial 현실을 부정하다

7-1. 25-9월

Q-32. 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

① to take advantage of political situations

② to endure hardships until prices go down

③ to contribute to the price stabilization of items

④ to avoid competition by using negotiation skills

⑤ to reveal their knowledge through their behavior

take advantage of ~을 활용하다
endure hardships 어려움을 견디다 contribute to ~에 기여하다
price stabilization 가격 안정화
negotiation skills 협상 기술
reveal 드러내다

① to부정사 · 의미상 주어

incentives / for individuals / _____.

- to부정사 : incentives를 수식 → ~하도록 하는 유인
- 의미상 주어 : for individuals → to부정사 행동의 주체

② 병렬구조 · 관계사절 · 분사구문

They stop buying items / that do not satisfy their needs / and stop selling items / that do not provide them with optimal gains, / maybe switching to the production of other items.

- stop -ing : 동명사만을 목적어로 취하는 동사
- switching ~ : (분사구문) 다른 품목의 생산으로 전환하기도 하면서

③ 조건절 · 삽입구 · that절

If they have motivational problems, / for example, falling into denial about the fact / that there is no demand for their products, / markets reveal to them, / sometimes in quite brutal ways, / that they better accept this fact.

- 문장 골격 : If S + V, (삽입구), markets reveal to them that …
- 예시 삽입 : falling into denial ~는 motivational problems의 예 → 수요가 없다는 사실을 부정하는 것
- 동격의 명사절을 이끄는 접속사 that : the fact that … → ~라는 사실
- 목적어(명사절)을 이끄는 접속사 that : reveal … that they better accept
- had better : ~하는 편이 낫다. … that they (had) better accept ☜ had가 생략된 구어적 표현: 조동사처럼 생각하고, 다음에 동사원형 사용

7-1. 25-9월

Q-32. 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.

A great strength of the market mechanism is that there are incentives for individuals _____. This stands in contrast to many strategic situations — for example, in political negotiations — in which it is wise not to let the other side know what one's true preferences or production capacities are. A perfectly competitive market that clears on the spot leaves no room for such strategies. If prices are not sticky — as many models assume — individuals adapt their behavior instantaneously, whenever their preferences or the circumstances change. They stop buying items that do not satisfy their needs and stop selling items that do not provide them with optimal gains, maybe switching to the production of other items. If they have motivational problems, for example, falling into denial about the fact that there is no demand for their products, markets reveal to them, sometimes in quite brutal ways, that they better accept this fact.